CAO LẦU

A specialty regional noodle dish from Hoi An which consists of pork and greens on a bed of rice noodles soaked in lye water giving them a color and texture that sets them apart from any other Vietnamese noodle dish.

Local legend suggests that the lye should be made from the ashes of plants from the nearby Cham Islands, and the water used in soaking the rice should be taken from the ancient Ba Le well in Hoi An.

For this Cao lầu is rarely found outside Hoi An
